Tracy A. Todd – Introduction/Bio

Tracy has lived with neurological illness since the tender age of twelve, but she thrives despite suspected childhood epilepsy, adolescent acute migraines, and her more recent Multiple Sclerosis diagnosis in December of 2002. She has been a Tysabri patient for the past three years.

Tracy is an author, poet and MS Ambassador. She holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Information Systems, but prefers designing and creating art for arts' sake. She is actively involved with the National MS Society, and serves as a Self-Help Group Leader for the African-Americans w/MS SHG. Tracy participated in a video created for the newly diagnosed, sponsored by Multiple Sclerosis Association of America. She has a strong spirited work ethic and graciously incorporates MS into her home and family life.

Tracy describes herself as a wife, a mother and a “free spirit.” She lives in Northern California with her early childhood friend and neighbor, later turned sweetheart and prom date, and eventually became her lovely and supporting husband David, as well as their 19 year old son, their 17 year old daughter, and their fun-loving Rottie. Her husband and family are a huge part of her support system, and are also actively involved in the fight against MS and volunteer for local and national MS organizations. Together they participate in fundraising events, walks and socials. The Todd youth assisted UCSF and the NMSS, Northern CA Chapter with a photography project for pediatric MS patients. They also raised $1,500.00 through their High School MS Support and Awareness - Free-Dress Pass event.

Several gifts have been born out of Tracy's life with chronic illness. Her medical memoir, When the Body Says No – A Learn, Laugh, Love Story was recently published and is available on Amazon.com. A bamboo walking stick was the catalyst for her to create other bamboo arts and crafts found on her on-line art and gift gallery. And, due to MS, Tracy wears wrist braces, so she developed and patented wrist brace covers to fashionably disguise unsightly braces.

Tracy motivates and inspires, through her accomplishments and perspective, which reflect her unyielding and contagiously positive attitude, “I have MS, MS does not have me!”

Please join me in welcoming our honored guest speaker, Tracy Todd, and her husband David to Elan.
